Edited by
Mridula Kapoor

This book addresses the problems of higher education in India. These essays presented in a seminar at Loreto College Kolkata define the concept of inclusivity in higher education and provide solutions to the existing shortcomings in India's higher education system. The book is also historical and examines Loreto's place in higher education in a study of its key figures whose pioneering contribution enhanced educational parameters significantly during the British Raj and whose work has endured post 1947.
