14 July 2026- Research Methodology Session for Semester 2

The session was with Dr Shehnaz Kabir and Dr Krishnokoli Hazra on 14th July from 1:15 PM. They helped students understand the basics of starting a research project at the undergraduate level through a visual PowerPoint presentation and an interactive question-and-answer session.

We were taught the importance of choosing a research topic we are interested in, as well as the importance of conducting a literature review. Dr Krishnokoli Hazra provided many insightful points regarding research as a student of history. Many real-life examples were used to explain the process of beginning a research project and conducting research on historical topics. Special emphasis was also given to sources, both primary and secondary sources. The students were also given insight into how research continues from the undergraduate level to post-graduate and then research as a PhD scholar as well.

The session was then concluded with an interactive question-answer round where different research topics were discussed by the students with Dr Kabir and Dr Hazra. who responded to all the queries. The interactive nature of the session, as well as the visual presentation, helped the students of Semester 2 understand how research methodology works in history as a discipline and removed many of the doubts that the students had regarding research methodology.
