Dr Sukanya Mitra: Facilitator

Evaluation Report on Peer Teaching using gaming and other teaching aids

Department of History, Semester 1 Major, February 9, 2026

Course Name: HIS-H/CC 1 History of India from earliest times upto 300 BCE

Module V: Cultures in transition—The Vedic Age, Jainism and Buddhism, The Rise of the Mahajanapadas, The Sangam Age

The students were asked to make an innovative teaching aid on any of the topics included in the given module and use them for peer teaching. They were divided into groups for the same. While four groups came up with quizzes using various apps, one group made a podcast. The students enjoyed making the different aids using various apps as well as participating in the class and responding to the questions/ discussion conducted by their peers. The topics had already been discussed by Dr Mitra in the class and the peer teaching exercise was a method to evaluate how much the students had understood. It also gave the learners a chance to evaluate their peers and made teaching-learning enjoyable and fun.
